Yet again the Branxton layout proved to be a tough test for a majority of the field of 44 players today. Brett Hutley returned to form with a very handy 37 points to take out A grade, a score he first thought wouldn't be good enough after finishing with two 1 point holes. Peter Mackenzie took the runners up prize with a well-made 36 points despite the grip on his driver needing some TLC during the round. Lee Hunt picked up third place with 33 points. In B grade, Kel Mather showed the way with 34 points, one clear of Michael Carling, who was ruing a bit of a lost opportunity after an impressive 20 points on the front nine. Ed Garland was back on the podium with his 31 points. Brett Trezise and playing partner Barry Taylor fought out C grade, with Brett taking the honours with a great score of 37 points, two points clear of Garry. Richie Turnbull pipped playing partner Dean Clack on the last hole to take third place with a pleasing 30 points. Norm Pringle had the NTP honours on the 2nd/11th hole, while Nick Wheeler didn't think his 500cm would hold up on the 4th hole, but nobody was able to get closer. Reece Caldwell's tee shot on the 13th turned out to be the best of the day on that hole, while Ben George hit a super shot on the 9th to a back pin position to claim shot of the day. Murray Kingston picked up another Pro NTP with his shot on the last hole just better than Paul Johansen's effort. In the Singles Knockout, sponsored by Mitchell Olsen at Urban Real Estate, Michael Carling proved too good for Steve Ross and awaits the winner of next week's match between Robert Biles and Cameron Johanson in the final. More Pairs knockout matches are also scheduled for next Saturday.

Upcoming Events

The club mixed foursomes championships will be played next Sunday 21/7/24. The following Saturday 27/7/24 is a 2 person ambrose event and will also be the 2024 Golf NSW Keno Ambrose qualifying event for the men's and mixed competitions.
