Breezy but fine conditions greeted the small field for the 2024 Club Mixed Foursomes Championships. On a day where you try not to put your partner into too much trouble, there were still some interesting locations around the course that the teams managed to find. Jane Johansen found some lovely spots for her partner Paul Johansen to play from, including one where Paul had to play a left handed shot out of a penalty area. To be fair to Paul he played a wonderful recovery shot from that position. Current men's club champion Cameron Johanson paired up with current women's club champion Kerrie Fry to start as firm favourites. Their overall ability to play the best golf in the conditions shone through and they won the club championships with a scratch score of 89. Steve Ross and Jan Davidson played some consistent golf all day to take the scratch runners up prize with a very respectable 95. Graeme Scobie partnered with wife Jan to take the nett winners with a very handy 77. The team started the round in the best possible way, with Graeme chipping in on the 1st hole from 50 metres out to start the day with a birdie. Murray and Karen Johanson toiled away throughout their round and took the runners up prize with 81.5 nett. Jan Scobie took the NTP on offer for the women on the 18th hole, while the men were unable to find the 9th green. Thanks to all who played in the event.

The next set of club championships are the men's foursomes which are scheduled for Saturday 10 August.
