With the course slowly drying out after the recent wet weather, most of the field of 40 players enjoyed the scoring conditions in today's stableford event. Mark Moylan returned to winning ways with a great score of 38 points to win A grade, 2 points clear of last week's winner David Kinch on 36 points. Steve Eccles left the woes of last week behind him to claim third with 34 points, which also included NTP's on the 4th and 9th/18th, along with the pro NTP prize to round off a great day. His playing partner Bob Biles said that it must have been the clubs that he was using, and that some sort of commission is owed as a result. In B grade, Murray Kingston found his groove again to win with a strong 38 points, one clear of Murray Johanson on 37 points. Murray's round included two chip ins, with the one on the 12th hole for birdie quite spectacular. Paul Johansen took third with 35 points and claimed the NTP on the 13th with the shot of the day to 25cm. Paul also won the "wear the same shirt as Neil Jordan" competition, as he turned up with exactly the same shirt as Neil. They were also in the same playing group but declined the opportunity to play together in their pairs match within the group. In C grade, Kel Mather enjoyed the drier conditions to take the win with 37 points, followed by the very consistent Ben George on 36 points. Lenny Porter found some form to finish third on 35 points, no doubt helped by winning the NTP on the 2nd hole. The remaining pairs knockout semi final is set for next Saturday.
