Leanne Daniels took the spotlight on Saturday after her hole in one on the 2nd hole. Many comments were made on how excited Leanne was when she saw her ball make its way in the hole on the current temporary green. Congratulations on a great achievement. The par event showed again that it tends to favour the high markers with some high scores achieved by those with higher handicaps. Despite the blustery conditions and cored greens, 46 players enjoyed the late warm winter weather. Bob Biles returned to form to win A grade with +1. He commented that he was glad to have his regular irons back in his bag and it certainly made a difference today. Lindsay Johanson took second with 0, a score that equals his handicap. Peter Mackenzie had a solid back nine to take third with -1 on a countback from Steve Ross, David Kinch and Cameron Johanson. Mick Barrett putted very well and is making his way back into A grade after posting the winning score of +4 in B grade. Tim Lane had a great day to post +3 in second place, while Murray Johanson wasn't about to let his brother be the only Johanson on the podium with a score of +1 to place third. Norman Pringle had an exceptional round to win C grade and post the score of the day with +9. Norm's round included 12 holes where he scored a "+", a fantastic effort. Brett Trezise had a great round of +3 to come second on a countback from Leanne Daniels, whose work on the par 3's certainly helped her +3 score. As was discussed afterwards, if today had been a stableford round, Leanne would have scored 6 points for her hole in one, also a rare achievement. Cameron Johanson's shot to the 4th hole was a gem finishing 48cm from the pin, while Chris Zawirski picked up the NTP on the 13th. Leanne Daniels found her range again on the 9th hole to take the NTP, while Steve Eccles won the Pro NTP for the second week in a row on the last hole. The second semi final in the pairs knockout came down to the last hole, with Michael Carling and Tim Lane taking the hole to defeat Cameron and Murray Johanson 1 up. In a good pairs match where the lead was never more than 2 holes, Mick finished with 3 pars in a row to make it just a little too difficult for the Johanson's to match. Mick and Tim now play Peter Conroy and Murray Kingston in the final. The pairs knockout is sponsored by Mitchell Olsen at Urban Real Estate.

Upcoming Events

The annual Whitelaw/McDonald Solicitors 4 person ambrose day is on Saturday 14/9/24. We are excited to announce that Paul Harragon ("The Chief") will be in attendance to help conduct the presentations at the conclusion of the golf event.
